About the Restaurant

Old Piano is a restaurant on the main highway just north of Mtskheta, near Tserovani, convenient for groups travelling to or from Kazbegi or western Georgia. Its large dining hall doubles as a museum, filled with everyday objects from the Soviet period, vintage radios and kitchenware, and antique musical instruments from the 18th and 19th centuries.

The menu combines Georgian dishes with nostalgic Soviet-era recipes and dishes from the old imperial cuisine, and the restaurant keeps its own wine cellar. During dinner the host often shares stories about the collection and the period, which makes it an unusual stop for groups interested in recent history.
